OUR VERDICT

A focused study loop: listen, get notes, test yourself

Smart pick
Study tool

Databloom pairs two things that belong together: a practical ebook on how to study (active recall, spaced repetition, the Feynman technique, interleaving and exam preparation) and an app that helps you actually do it. In class you record in your browser and follow live captions; afterwards Databloom turns the recording into a structured note you can edit, lets you attach one PDF (for example the slides) and builds a short quiz with explanations grounded in your note. That means you can listen in the lecture instead of typing everything, and revise with retrieval practice rather than re-reading. The offer page is refreshingly clear about limits — 300 recorded minutes per seven days, no lifetime deal, no free trial, AI output may contain errors — and the ebook and your notes stay with you if you cancel. Backed by a 60-day money-back guarantee, it is an easy bundle to try for a term.

What we like

- Listen instead of typing. Live captions while you record; a structured note afterwards.
- Quizzes from your own material. Retrieval practice with explanations grounded in your note.
- Method plus tool. The ebook teaches the techniques; the app makes them a habit.
- Keep what you made. The ebook is yours, and notes stay readable after you cancel.
- Honest, clear offer. Limits, renewal and AI accuracy are stated up front.
- Safe to try. 60-day money-back guarantee; cancel the monthly plan anytime.

Good to know

- Subscription after day one. $39.99 today includes the ebook and first month; then $10 a month until you cancel. No free trial.
- 300 minutes per week. Enough for about five one-hour lectures in each seven-day period.
- Check AI output. Transcripts, notes and quizzes can contain errors — compare key facts with your sources.
- Ask before recording. Many universities require the lecturer's permission to record; check your course rules.

HOW IT WORKS

One lecture, one study loop

1

Capture the lecture

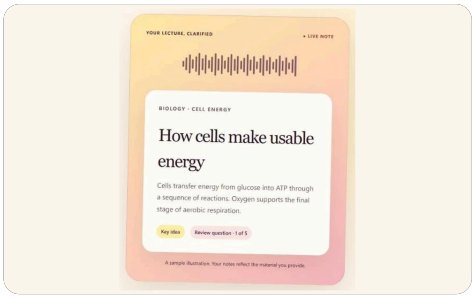
Start a recording in your browser at the beginning of class and follow the live captions — no frantic typing.

Recording	● live
Captions	on
Device	browser + mic
Weekly limit	300 min

2

Make it make sense

After class Databloom turns the recording into a structured note. Edit it, add your own points and attach the slides as a PDF.



3

Practise remembering

Take a short quiz with explanations, built from your note and source material — retrieval practice, not re-reading.

Quiz	5 questions
Explanations	✓
Grounded in	your note
Repeat	spaced reviews

4

Use the methods from the ebook

Plan reviews with spaced repetition, explain topics with the Feynman technique and mix subjects with interleaving.

Active recall	✓
Spaced repetition	✓
Feynman technique	✓
Interleaving	✓

SETUP GUIDE

Setup guide: from checkout to your first quiz

About ten minutes before your next lecture.

1

Check you may record

Look at your course or university rules, or ask the lecturer, before recording lectures.

2

Buy the bundle

Check out through Digistore24 with the e-mail you want to use for Databloom. Keep the order e-mail — it has your return and cancel links.

3

Download the ebook

Download the Effective Study Methods PDF from the Digistore24 order confirmation page and save it.

4

Create your Databloom account

Go to databloom.app and sign up or sign in with the same e-mail you used at checkout. Pro activates once Digistore24 confirms payment.

💡 No Pro access yet? Contact Databloom support from your purchase e-mail.

5

Allow the microphone

Open Databloom in a supported browser and allow microphone access. Do a 30-second test recording before class.

6

Record your lecture

Start recording at the start of class and follow the live captions. Keep an eye on your 300 minutes per week.

7

Turn it into a note

After class, create the structured note, edit it, add your own examples and attach the slides as one PDF.

8

Quiz yourself and plan reviews

Take the quiz the same day, then again on spaced review days (see our planner). Cancel from your order e-mail when term ends.

OPTIONAL

How to use it for your situation

Starting points; adjust to your timetable.

Lecture-heavy term

1. Record your hardest lectures first.
2. Note + quiz the same evening.
3. Keep under 300 min per week.

Goal: listen in class, revise after.

Exam season

1. Quiz every note on spaced review days.
2. Use the Feynman check on weak topics.
3. Interleave subjects in each session.

Goal: remember on exam day.

Self-study

1. Record yourself explaining a chapter.
2. Attach the chapter PDF to the note.
3. Quiz yourself from it.

Goal: active learning, not re-reading.
